

Neonatal Nurse Research Special Interest Group

Role/Purpose

The Research SIG is dedicated to facilitating research excellence among Neonatal Nurses to support the highest possible nursing care for all neonates and their families.

Aims

- To provide research education and mentoring opportunities for members
- To prioritise the importance of research in improving neonatal clinical care and developmental outcomes
- To provide the ACNN Executive with recommendations regarding research gaps and priorities in the field of neonatal nursing.

What can I expect if I join the Research SIG

- monthly teleconferences
- research mentorship and support
- research scholarships
- yearly education workshop
- collaboration in developing research initiatives

Research SIG activities for 2022

- Australian Neonatal Nursing Care Outcomes: Neonatal Nursing Outcome Measures Project
- Virtual Education and Networking sessions
- Mentoring members in submitting abstracts for national and international conferences
- Scholarships for research
- Contribute to ACNN National Conference (Writing workshop)

Interested in knowing more?

Contact us at researchsig@acnn.org.au or scan the QR code to find our website.

