Statement

The Australian College of Neonatal Nurses (ACNN) is dedicated to the promotion of excellence in the care of neonates and their families. Its Special Interest Groups (SIGs) support this outcome by monitoring, informing and making recommendations to the ACNN National Committee on many aspects of neonatal nursing care. The Neo-Skin SIG focuses on promotion and guidance for skin care, clinical practice and best available evidence.

Purpose

The skin is the largest organ of the human body and protecting skin is an essential element in providing care to well, preterm and sick newborns. The Neo-Skin SIG provides a forum for practice and health promotion discussion, emphasising skin injury prevention and management for neonates and their families. Additionally, the SIG provides a community for neonatal clinicians and collaborators to explore and share quality improvement, practice or research initiatives related to skin care and health.

Operating Committee

The Operating committee must consist of a minimum of 5 members to fill the positions of Chair/Co-chairs, Secretary, Treasurer Liaison, Social Media Liaison and Ordinary Members. Operating committee members hold the positions for a period of 12 months and have the opportunity to re-nominate each 12 months. The operating committee positions become vacant at the SIG annual general meeting. SIG members can nominate before the meeting or from the floor at the meeting. The committee will strive to retain 50% of members from the previous year to provide support and guidance for incoming committee members. Any ACNN member can attend the committee meetings throughout the year as an observer and may elect to join the committee as an ordinary member after attending three committee meetings.

Activities are documented under the umbrella of the current ACNN Strategic Plan and made available on the ACNN website and reported against in the annual report. The Neo-skin SIG will provide support to ACNN executive on issues and correspondence relating to neonatal skin and skin care products.
