Research Special Interest Group

Purpose

The Research SIG is dedicated to facilitating research excellence among Neonatal Nurses to support the highest possible nursing care for all neonates and their families.

Aims

- Providing research education and mentoring opportunities for members
- Prioritising the importance of research in improving neonatal clinical care and developmental outcomes
- Providing the ACNN Executive with recommendations regarding research gaps and priorities in the field of neonatal nursing.

What can I expect if I join the Research SIG

- Monthly teleconferences
- Research mentorship and support
- Two early presentation workshops
- Collaboration in developing research initiatives

Research SIG activities for 2024

- Australian Neonatal Nursing Care Outcomes: Neonatal Nursing Outcome Measures Project
- Virtual Education and Networking sessions
- Mentoring members in submitting abstracts for national and international conferences
- A research related workshop at the ACNN Annual Conference
- Neonatal Nursing Workforce workshop

Interested in knowing more?

Contact us at researchsig@acnn.org.au or scan the QR code to find our website.